HOOVER PLANS FOR REHABILITATION OF COUNTRY'S TRADE

Outlines Nine-Point Programme for Concerted Push From Coast to Coast—Business and Industrial Committees to Be Called Into Conference to Establish United Action

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Plans for a concerted push toward United States economic rehabilitation—reaching from coast to coast and into every industry—were outlined in a nine-point programme today by President Hoover. The President counted off to newspapermen called to his office one point after another of a project upon which he and administration leaders are at work.

He enumerated plans to replace slum districts, stimulate programmes for railway replacement and repair, broaden livestock and feeder loans, expand credit facilities, and speed up the movement of agricultural commodities.

FOR UNITED ACTION

When these varied efforts are further advanced, the President said, the "business and industrial" committees composed of prominent men in each of the twelve Federal reserve districts will be called into conference "with a view to establishing united and concerted action on a broad front throughout the country."

He then outlined activities of the $3,800,000,000 reconstruction corporation, the directorate of which he completed yesterday with the naming of Charles A. Miller, of Utica, New York, who will be its president.

As the first point of his programme, the President spoke of better organizing the corporation's new $1,500,000,000 powers for financing self-liquidating projects. An engineer of standing, he said, will be appointed as chairman of a board of engineers to advise the corporation as to how employment may be stimulated through early orders for material.

TO CLEAR SLUMS

His mention of a slum-clearing campaign was his first public intimation he contemplated immediate action along this line. Funds for the work would come from the reconstruction corporation.

The President also broached for the first time plans for railway replacement and repair as an aid to employment and a speeding up of industry through the placing of orders.

LIVESTOCK LOANS

In the attack upon agricultural problems, Mr. Hoover said, the reconstruction corporation also will be the spearhead. He said he had requested Paul B. Weaver, the farm

Currency Committee Not Yet Discussing Methods of Advancing Prices

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP).—The proposed plan for an Empire conference committee on monetary and financial questions, Low price levels and the instability of exchange rates have been discussed in a general way. The committee has not, however, got to the point of discussing methods for advancing prices.

Sittings will continue tomorrow and a subcommittee will be appointed to go into detail. It is intimated some of the representations made by delegates may be available next week.

WOULD BRING IMPROVEMENT

The chief effort of the committee, it is understood, is to arrive at some method for raising prices of primary commodities. If this could be achieved, the feeling is that improvement would be reflected all along the line.

Under present conditions, it is stated, debtor nations are seriously handicapped in meeting their obligations. Higher price levels and stable exchange are two of the ends sought in the march toward increased trade and prosperity.

AVIATRIX GIVEN U.S. FLYING CROSS

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—Before a crowd of nearly fifty thousand persons, Vice-President Charles Curtis late today bestowed upon Amelia Earhart Fulmar the Distinguished Flying Cross voted for Congress for being the first woman to fly alone across the Atlantic Ocean.

The ceremony was in connection with the dedication of the new State office building. On the platform were Governors Ralph of California and Balzar of Nevada and numerous silk-batted dignitaries of the Olympic Games.

Premier Tolmie Takes Political Snipers to Task

Says Those Demanding His Return Would Sacrifice Interests of Provincial Industry and Credit for Partisan Advantage—Efforts at Ottawa Can Mean Much in Increasing Employment

OTTAWA, July 29.—Appraising that as leader of the administration he is always fair game for political sniping within his own province, Premier Tolmie is frankly outspoken in his comment on British Columbia politicians who would sacrifice the interests of provincial industry and credit in an effort to seek partisan advantage. His comment comes as a result of criticism directed at him for remaining in Ottawa.

"I am in Ottawa because I believe that the best interests of British Columbia as a whole may be served by my presence here," he said. "I am not here for personal pleasure, nor yet for political purposes, but simply to serve the whole of British Columbia to the very best of my ability."

AUSTRIAN GOVT DEFAULTS LOAN

Is First Issue Backed by League to Suffer Lapse in Payments

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP).—Notice was served today upon the holders of $125,000,000 of bonds in North America and Europe, comprising the Austrian Government Guaranteed Loan of 1923, that the Austrian Government had defaulted in its contract to make regular monthly payments to the trustee for debt service requirements.

Simultaneously, it was announced, steps had been promptly taken to notify the League of Nations of the break in continuity. The League, in turn, has been urged to remind the eight member nations which guaranteed the loan of their contract to make good any lapses on the part of Austria.

The Austrian Government Loan was floated in 1923 under the aegis of the League of Nations. It was guaranteed to the extent of about $125,000,000 by Great Britain, France and Czechoslovakia, while the remaining quarter was endorsed by Italy, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and Holland. Only nominal parts of the loan have been repaid of the last three nations.

The break in the debt service marks the first time that any loan backed by the League of Nations has suffered any lapse in payments from the debtor country.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 29 (AP).—Emerich Szallai-Hollander and Aké Ander Furst, charged with plotting an uprising against the Government, to take place next month, were sentenced to death by a court-martial today.

REPORTER SUSPECTED AS BANDIT TAKEN FOR RIDE

"When you're in a hurry, call the police," is a truism few believe, but The Colonist reporter last night discovered its real meaning. This particular reporter may have been suspected of many things in his quest for news, but never before suspicion, however, that helped him keep an important assignment and catch the paper's "deadline."

He had missed two street cars at the junction of Clarke and Fort Streets and was impatiently waiting for a taxi when he saw a dark sedan car and a man in a dark suit and hat, who he recognized as a reporter, get into it.

BRITISH COLUMBIA INDUSTRY BOUND TO BENEFIT BY PARLEY

Canada Likely to Regain Vast British Market for Sawm Lumber

GREATER PREFERENCE IS BEING NEGOTIATED

By THOMAS GREEN
OTTAWA, July 29 (CP).—Canada bids to recover the vanished market in the world's largest lumber importing centre—England. With a potential annual market of $140,000,000 for sawn lumber in the Mother Country, Imperial conference discussions between the Dominions and representatives of British importers are making high progress in the effort to reach a mutual agreement.

From the Dominions, sawn lumber enters England free. Against foreign countries, a tariff of 10 per cent is imposed. But Canada supplies only 4.4 per cent of this market. Russia under Sovietism is supplying about 36.7 per cent. Principal other exporting countries have been heard in camera. Others will be heard next week. While secrecy is being maintained, these are the basis of discussions, it is learned.

Canada ships 140,000,000 feet measure annually in perpetuity. This figure represents about one-half of England's import of sawn lumber.

WON GRONAU IN CAPITAL CITY

Ottawa Greets Aviator—Will Cross Western Canada to Prince Rupert

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP).—Pioneer of the North Atlantic Airways, Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his adventurous crew of three rested in Ottawa tonight.

Tomorrow he will continue his flight, leaving here about 9 a.m. for Chicago. From there he will go to Prince Rupert, B.C., via Milwaukee, Lac du Bonnet, Man. and thence across the Western provinces, over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast.

The battle-grey flying boat, which took off from Montreal at 10:30 o'clock this morning, came to rest on the Ottawa River base of the Royal Canadian Air Force an hour and fifteen minutes later.

FELL FROM SCOW TO DROWN IN FRASER

NEW WESTMINSTER, July 29.—Falling from a scow which was being towed by a tug, a man was killed today in the Fraser River.

The victim, a man of about 40 years of age, was employed by the B.C. Manufacturing Company, Ltd., of New Westminster. He was working on a scow when he fell overboard.

His body was recovered by the Fraser River Police and is being kept in the morgue for identification.

Melanotrichus Potential Enemy of Scotch Broom

British Columbia has a new bug, and it attacks broom. Many specimens of a little green bug, about a quarter of an inch long and one-sixteenth of an inch wide, were trapped by William Downes, Dominion entomologist here, at Nanaimo, not long ago. Mr. Downes found myriads of the bugs on broom in the area, and was interested at once. Yesterday he received a reply from Dr. Knight, a specialist on the subject, stating that Mr. Downes was right in his conjectures.

Of the generic name of Melanotrichus, and the specific name of Concolor, the insect attacks the broom after the seeds have been formed. It has been learned, whether or not it will count in the control of the spread of broom, cannot yet be ascertained, been sought.

POLITICAL TRUCE Allows Vacation

BERLIN, July 29 (AP).—At Neudeck today, President von Hindenburg signed an emergency decree for a political truce from August 1 to August 10, during which all political gatherings, indoors and outdoors, will be forbidden. During that period the Chancellor and other members of the Cabinet will take a vacation.

PRINCE OF WALES HIS OWN DOCTOR

LONDON, July 29 (CP).—The Prince of Wales has become his own doctor, to a certain extent, according to his own testimony before the British Medical Association.

"I have had so much advice," he told the learned physicians, "and have also learned like many others how to keep myself fit, that I have, to some extent, become my own doctor. The doctor," he added gravely, "is certainly our first friend in life, and last."

CONFIDENCE PREVAILS AT OTTAWA SUCCESS WILL BE ACHIEVED BY CONFERENCE

OTTAWA, July 29.—Now that Great Britain has outlined her proposals and has been informed by the Dominion that they want in matters of trade, the process of smoothing out of the rough spots will be undertaken—and success will be achieved. Even confirmed pessimists who last week looked for an early collapse of the Imperial Conference can hardly convince themselves now that failure is a possibility.

There are many matters to be straightened out. There are many concessions to be made on all sides; many minor difficulties to be adjusted—but these give promise of yielding before the determined purpose of reasonable men actuated by a common purpose.

ALL PREPARED TO MAKE CONCESSIONS

By B. A. MCKELVIE
Colonist Staff Correspondent.
OTTAWA, July 29.—Now that Great Britain has outlined her proposals and has been informed by the Dominion that they want in matters of trade, the process of smoothing out of the rough spots will be undertaken—and success will be achieved. Even confirmed pessimists who last week looked for an early collapse of the Imperial Conference can hardly convince themselves now that failure is a possibility.

RC LOOMS LARGE

British Columbia looms largely in any discussion of Empire trade, and British Columbia will reap the benefit of an increase in trade. Lumber, fish, minerals, canned fruits and vegetables are products the nations of the Empire are considering. This fact stands out clearly: Any Imperial agreement that is attained must vastly benefit British Columbia. The conference was a success. The stakes are too high to have it otherwise. Such is the expressed conviction of everyone who has anything to do with the conference.

Methods of Placer Mining in B.C. Are Detailed in Report

Actual Means Adopted in Working River Bars and Benches Outlined by Provincial Mining Engineers in Recent Report

Gold mining and prospecting has been a decided feature of activities in the Northwestern section of British Columbia in the last six months. Dr. J. T. Mandy, the resident mining engineer for that section, in a report recently published by the Provincial Department of Mines, states that placer prospectors are gradually working into the likely areas in increasing numbers. He gives a good description of the methods used.

In the Skeena division, limited ground on Douglas Creek has been practically all taken up by about twenty individual placer miners. Most of these men are making expenses and sometimes a little better. Small recoveries have been made by others in preparatory work and placer prospecting is spreading into the Maroon, Weasich (Hall), and Clear Creek areas. These sections are suitable to individual miners, offering the promise of expenses of wages.

SLUICING BLACK SANDS

Referring to Graham Island, of the Queen Charlotte group, Dr. Mandy says that one man who is an expert placer miner has recovered fair wages from "sluicing" and sluicing the beach black sands. He adds that such a result is possible for an expert and experienced miner, more especially in the winter months, but the proposition is not recommended to "greenhorns."

In machine tests carried out on the beach sands in the neighborhood of Cape Mudge by Norman H. Terry, during a period of three months, the treatment of 102 cubic yards yielded $201. Further operations embodying preliminary concentration are contemplated.

Shovelling-in tests were also carried out on the Duncan lease at Lawn Hill and some gold recovery made, indicating a small operation on a pay-streak, running about $1 to the cubic yard.

DREDGING IN STIKINE

Touching on the Stikine and Liard regions, Dr. Mandy reports that all company operators active during the 1931 season are again on the ground.

and an increased number of individuals have taken to the field. On Barrington River the dredging operation of the Barrington interests has started with a full crew.

In the Liard division activity has increased in the McDames Creek area and is expanding down the Liard, and up the Muddy Rivers. New discoveries and increased placer gold production from this division are promised by these activities. An extensive area of likely placer ground is available for prospecting in this section.

ACTIVE IN ATLIN

In Atlin, all the larger hydraulic operations are under way with full crews. Latent possibilities are receiving active attention and there are more prospectors in the hills. Results from the work of new individual operations are not yet available. The greatly increased gold production which materialized from this area last year holds good promise of being sustained and even surpassed during 1932.

Dr. Mandy concludes his statement with a few suggestions for those who contemplate placer gold prospecting in his district as follows:

METHODS DETAILED

(1) Success is dependent on some knowledge of placer ground, and the ability to undertake and persist in hard back-breaking work.

(2) Profitable recovery by the simplest process of panning requires very rich shallow ground. An experienced miner could efficiently get about ten per cent of gravel in an hour, about one hundred pans a day, or approximately one cubic yard per day. To return wages such ground, dependent on location, should run at least $3 per cubic yard. Such ground is a rarity. Efficient use of the pan requires skill and patience.

(3) Rocker operation requires about 100 gallons of water per day. It is adapted to small rich deposits of shallow gravel in localities of limited water supply. One man can operate a rocker, but two men are more efficient. Up to about five cubic yards of gravel can be handled by two men through a rocker in a day. To return wages such a two-man operation requires ground, dependent on location, running at least from $1.50 to $2 per cubic yard.

(4) Shovelling-in to sluices is adapted to shallow deposits of gravel where running water and a 3 to 4 per cent grade is available. Dependent on the height of lift, type of gravel, boulders, etc., it can shovel in from three to eight cubic yards of gravel in a day. To return wages, according to location and type of ground, gravel should grade from 50c to $1 per cubic yard.

(5) Ground sluicing is adapted to shallow deposits up to about eight feet deep, where good grade and plentiful water supply are available. Requires about six to eight cubic yards of gravel in a day. Two men can move from fifteen to thirty cubic yards of gravel in a day. Dependent on water supply, ground, and much more ground can be moved. Dependent on the amount of subsequent bed-rock cleaning and subsequent shovelling-in, ground grading from about 35c to 60c to the yard could return wages for a two-man operation.

(6) Drifting—For a criterion on costs in the Atlin and Skeena divisions, dependent on type of ground, etc., costs vary from about 6c to 18c per cubic yard of ground moved.

(7) Dredging—For a criterion on costs in the Atlin and Skeena divisions, dependent on type of ground, etc., costs vary from about 6c to 18c per cubic yard of ground moved.

(8) Hydraulic mining in the Atlin and Stikine divisions, dependent on type of ground, etc., costs vary from about 6c to 18c per cubic yard of ground moved.

(9) Dredging costs on Barrington River, Stikine River area, on a basis of 1,000 cubic yards of gravel a day, are estimated at about 20c a cubic yard.

FREE MINERS' PERMITS

Nearly 1,000 provisional free miners' certificates have been issued in the Kootenay mining divisions, according to B. T. O'Grady, resident mining engineer, Nelson, in his report. The number of prospectors in the hills has grown to the same extent and some interesting placers have been discovered.

Gold sold through the banks in Cranbrook is said to have been averaging about $150 a day. In other sections no estimate of production is possible at this time, but wages are being made in some cases.

On Fish Lake Creek, a tributary of Palmer Bar Creek, an interesting discovery is being worked by M. Brandvold and partner, of Cranbrook. Gold, including numerous coarse nuggets up to $2.50 in value, is being recovered by them at the rate of about $8 to $10 a day. The gold is found in crevices in the quartzite rim-rock on the eastern side of the little valley some little distance above the creek.

GROUND IS STAKED

As a result of this discovery the whole length of the creek from Palmer Bar Creek to Fish Lake has been taken up as placer claims and leases. On Perry Creek and vicinity, O. M. Bell, of Calgary, and associates, constituting the Perry Creek Syndicate, have acquired numerous leases and have been testing the ground by shaft sinking.

Placer mining, Mr. O'Grady continues, is widespread in the East Kootenay, and other creeks being worked include Wildhorse, Palmer Bar and Maud Creek. These activities, mostly of a preliminary nature, may well result in a substantial aggregate production of placer gold.

In the West Kootenay prospecting for placer gold is also intensified in the Big Bend north of Revelstoke; at several points on the Lardner River; on the upper Duncan River, near Hall Creek; Forty-Nine River, Hall Creek; and the Bend O'Reilly River, in the area tributary to Nelson. Many other places also are being explored.

many phases of our industrial life that are not specially represented. He claims a great deal of attention.

"British Columbia is vitally interested in this conference. We are a province that depends on prosperity on primary resources. It would be criminal to neglect any opportunity to advance the interests of those resources. Return to production means employment. We are in a position to do this."

"I intend to do everything that I can for British Columbia, despite the evident desire of critics who are anxious to play in the mud puddles of politics. They will have plenty of time and opportunity on my return to throw mud. But in the meantime I am going to carry on doing what I can for all the people of the province."

Anyone who is brought into contact with affairs here knows how hard Premier Tolmie is working. Now is the only premier from the provinces here. In fact, every provincial prime minister, except those from Alberta and Manitoba—and they are expected to be on the job for his province.

CLEARS FALSE IMPRESSION

An illustration of the need for constant watchfulness at a time when, in addition to the Empire Conference, trade negotiations are in progress, and one man representing twenty-four cars, or about twelve cubic yards, are produced a day. To return wages, gravel should run about $1 to the cubic yard. In wet ground, requiring pumping, hoisting and timbering, higher costs are entailed.

WATER POWER USED

(8) Hydraulic mining in the Atlin and Stikine divisions, dependent on type of ground, etc., costs vary from about 6c to 18c per cubic yard of ground moved.

(9) Dredging costs on Barrington River, Stikine River area, on a basis of 1,000 cubic yards of gravel a day, are estimated at about 20c a cubic yard.

CHILDREN WELL CARED

There was no ground for complaint against the manner in which the Doukhobor children have been looked after, Mr. Pooley declared. The appeal for the release of their parents is another matter, and not one on which the Province can act for itself, being wholly under Federal control.

The British Columbia view, however, is that the law must take its course, especially in view of repeated warnings issued by the Province in an effort to stop major disturbances in the Nelson, Grand Forks and other areas, where conditions had become intolerable for settlers in these districts.

The laws of the land must be obeyed, and no racial or other considerations can change this elementary requirement of good citizenship, the Acting Premier concluded.

BRITISH COLUMBIA INDUSTRY BOUND TO BENEFIT BY PARLEY

pire goes, there is little hope for the world. It is just that. There are the stakes. The game is on.

MUST BE SOLVED

His Lordship gave expression to that opinion for publication, together with his conviction that success would be achieved and while the bells in the Peace Tower peal out, quiet spoken men sit in the several committee rooms of the big Parliament Building and calmly and dispassionately discuss problems that they know must be solved at the price of the collapse of civilization.

There is no hysteria, no excitement about it all—it cannot compare for instance, with the clamor and clamor of a political convention—just calm determination to win.

"Damn," exclaimed one visitor from across the border, after reading Lord Hailsham's opinion. "He says that as if he was commenting on the weather, and yet he means it—he really means it. It's the same spirit."

Will not let go

The genial Lord Hailsham, with pink and dimpled cheeks, who looks for all the world like a great kewpie, has brought it home to everyone. There will be no failure. There cannot be.

And so the old bulldog and the pups are setting their teeth into the problems as they did when the Empire was threatened before—and there is no thought of letting go.

There is another studied answer of Lord Hailsham that is of great interest and great hope to British Columbia. He was asked if Britain would give the full embargo requested by Canada and Australia on Soviet products, and especially wheat and lumber. "We may not be able to do all that we are asked, but we certainly can do something," he replied.

WILL START WHEELS AGAIN

And that something—whatever it may be—will mean more sales for British Columbia lumber, salmon, and foodstuffs, and British Columbia minerals as well. It will mean that the wheels of industry will be started again, that better times will follow.

It is a mighty drama that is being played. Its equal has never been witnessed on this continent at least, and probably never in the history of the world. It is greater even than the drive.

FEDERAL OBLIGATIONS

As it does in many cases, the Province remained responsible for the children, whose parents were in jail. In this connection, Mr. Pooley said, there was some question as to whether or not the Dominion Government should shoulder this responsibility, in view of the circumstances under which the Doukhobors came to Canada, and British Columbia's long series of trials with the unruly element of the sect.

Leaving the question of responsibility for the care of the children aside for the moment, the Province has taken the best possible care of the children of the Sons of Freedom who had been arrested in the drive.

The younger children were placed with Provincial charitable institutions at the Coast, and the older boys and girls at the Boys' and Girls' Industrial Schools, not as inmates in the accepted sense, but for shelter, board and education. These

TRAGIC HOLIDAY ENDED AT LAST

Uncle Killed, Cousin Injured, House Robbed, Clothes Taken and Job Lost

J. H. Aylwin, of the Canadian Pacific freight office here, has returned from one of the most tragic vacations recounted here for some time.

While returning from a tour of Washington, Mr. Aylwin's car skidded on a gravel highway near Newport, Wash., and the machine overturned.

His uncle, George E. Gathercole, aged sixty, of Vancouver, was killed, while Mr. Gathercole's son was slightly injured. The bereaved party returned to Vancouver, only to find that Mr. Gathercole's home had been entered while they were away and stripped by burglars of almost everything. Only heavy furniture and a radio were left behind. Even the clothes were taken.

The deceased's son, J. W. Gathercole, on his return found he was out of employment, and is now residing with friends until he can re-adjust himself after the tragic occurrence.

realize that Germany was endangered by an aspect of civil war due to extremist tension."

FIGHTING UNITS

The Communists, he continued, had built powerful fighting units throughout Prussia, and the recent disorders were due mainly to their illegal activities, which no Government could continue to tolerate without relinquishing its own authority.

"Order now has been re-established throughout Germany," he said. "The present Government will see that this order under no circumstances is disturbed."

The administration of Prussia by a Federal Commission, he said, was intended to be permanent, and the independence of the German States will not be violated, the Chancellor promised. He expressed the hope that Sunday's elections would justify the measure that his Government has taken.

"Germany is now in the midst of evolution. The real source of all our despair and discontent is the Treaty of Versailles. There is no German who acknowledges as just that Germany be placed in a position of inferiority."

The corporation, he said, now is devoting particular attention under its new powers to financing the movement of agricultural commodities into consumption "with a view to stimulating demands through restoration of orderly marketing."

Private agencies, he said, also may be called into play.

CREDIT FACILITIES

The other points in his nine-point programme included expansion of credit facilities, particularly where the disposal of the goods concerned is assured, swift organization of the home loan bank system and, lastly, "other avenues of co-operation between the Government in aid to public and private agencies."

Sinclair Chums Up With Refugees Amid Chapei Devastation

Shares Roast Pork With Dentist Amid Ruins of Buildings and Furniture—Then Tries a Little Soup With Russian Ladies

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPEI, China.—The return of the refugees to what had once been the thriving Shanghai suburb of Chapei began today when the first train to cross the Shanghai-Nanking railway since Japan's bombardment rolled into a wilderness of smouldering bricks and twisted steel.

GORDON SINCLAIR

In front of the parade were Shanghai lilies, fifty or sixty tall wild white Russian women who long ago tossed discretion to the wolves and now live the life of a rough-house Riley. Nowhere else in the world will you find such ruthless savage women as these daughters of once powerful families under the Czar.

They've got the idea that somehow life has cheated them and now by fury, intrigue, love or war they're going to get a run for their money. One more bombardment or one more war is just like one more cocktail to these hatchet-faced pagans who struggled off the Shanghai express today bearing pussy cats, banjos, bundles, battered auto-cases, spare blankets, and a to-hell-with-everybody expression.

CHINESE WELCOME CONTRAST
In deepest contrast were the placid Chinese. It was impossible to see if they were mad, glad, or sad. They saw and smelled ruined miles of what had once been home, silently picked out a few bricks which had been their own spot in the scheme of things, and sat down to have a cup of tea or repair the havoc.

Thousands streamed in on foot carrying everything from trunks to Pekinese puppies. More than half had been birds. If they didn't have anything else they had at least Dick, the canary, to keep them company. Rickshaw boys yelled "hup, hup" as they jogged through the crowd with carts piled high with everything from gold fish to ice cream freezers. Usually the load was topped by a woman who gazed on ruination as if she hadn't a care in this or any other world.

There wasn't enough left of Chapei station for Shipwreck Kelly to perch atop. Just a few charred timbers and some cracked bricks, but the yards had been put in shape and the express was only four hours late. About one road in six had been repaired and these swarmed with sightseers, refugees and boys selling pickled herring or candied plums. The thing seemed worse than retreat from Mons except that every body had a poker face and didn't seem to care.

In one devastated shop an old boy in a purple robe sat smoking a cigar. He looked over his left eye and the cigar going under forced draft. In front of him was a sign "House Repairing—Can Do." Someday soon that lad's going to be plenty busy.

DIG FOR BODIES

Whiskered Mongolians, down from the North, dug among the ruins for missing bodies. They had long dangling arms like gorillas and now and again they'd find a damp black mass that had been a man. This brought a crowd around, but there was no sign of horror on their faces.

I had been trying to push through in a car, but got stuck in one of the blocked roads and after an hour had to abandon the machine and push on. About a half mile up front an old lady and two little girls were crying quietly before the shattered remains of their home. Only one of their men folk was left and he lay

Conversion Loan Scheme Progressing

WHEN Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, surprised the House of Commons with the announcement of the British Government's great War Loan conversion scheme of placing the 5 per cent War Loan on a 3½ per cent basis, thus saving $10,000,000 a year, it also caused the Government officials to hustle. The Government Printing Works at Harrow had the gigantic task of printing 15,000,000 documents and dispatching them in 3,000,000 envelopes in twenty-four hours, so that every holder of War Loan in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales had his or her forms by breakfast time the next morning.

At the right shows the Chancellor of the Exchequer leaving his house for the Treasury to supervise the scheme.

legions in a printing plant that had been turned into a hospital. The woman's few belongings were spread across the road and between rows she stood cursing a Japanese sailor who mounted guard nearby. He didn't pay the slightest attention. I clattered through bricks and stones and twisted bedsteads to a side road and got held up again because all the bridges were down. A few families were having basket picnics in what had been their front parlors and a dentist with the name of Chu Chu invited me to join him in a slab of roasted pork. Anyway he said it was roasted.

SAVED KIMONO
His wife must have been having a bath when the storm broke because she escaped in a padded kimono and that's the only garment she has yet. There were holes through the outer silk and every now and again she'd pluck out a tuft of cotton and tidy her baby's nose with it.

The warning refugees seemed to fairly ooze courage. As the hours went on they sorted themselves out, found their places and laid out blankets or bed rolls to sleep among the dust and bricks. One or two toddlers in duck suits or tubs or pigs on ropes. Both the Jap sailors and Mongolian guards stared at me as if I didn't belong and they wouldn't allow any pictures. I did snap one mother who fled among burning furniture following twin boys from a dripping bowl, but the little fellows cried as if their hearts would break so I gave them a piece of chocolate and the mother raised a big noise.

They say that a rickshaw coolie only lives five years after he starts playing pony, but the old boys who were jogging along with the contents of a moving van in their carts must have been at the job forty years or more. They were bent, bowlegged and barefooted, but just as carefree as babes. With so much ruination around them sometimes ran a nail through their feet, but only stopped a minute to jerk it out again and carry on without complaint.

It was dark before I left Chapei and oil lamps bobbed here and there during the piles of ruins. Although the place was a shambles somebody had started a couple of gramophone records and the screams which Chinese call music ripped the air.

The Russian girls were grouped around a brick stove they'd built in a spot that looked like a monastery. I stood watching them and one sang out "Hey Zichi!" "Who me?" "Sure you—want some soup?" "Sure." "Well we gotta have salt of course. You can have soup if you get salt and an onion." "Sorry," I said, "I only got chocolate."

"Make mine vanilla," another girl chirped. "But sundae for me," a third said.

BED SPRINGS FOR CHAIRS
"You wouldn't have a cigarette?" the first girl asked. "Sure—lots of them." "Well drag up the sofa and rest your heels." She pointed to part of a wash tub so I pulled that up. "Now turn on the radio and we'll get Rudy Vallee," the wisecrackers went on.

The washbasin was no good as a seat but I found the springs of a bed and piled bricks underneath so that it sat pretty comfortable. A boy went by selling grub but he wouldn't let us have any. Then some promiscuous fellows came along in a big truck and thought our party was good so they took lot of shot of under flare lights. There was cabbage and potatoes in the thick yellow soup and it was boiling hot but tasted a bit insipid. I used a pen and pencil to scoop up the lumpy parts of mine from the bottom of a five gallon gasoline tin. The movie fellows thought that was great stuff.

Afterwards some of the girls shuffled away into the dark to find more bed springs and the others told bloodcurdling tales of war days—so bloodcurdling that they were immediately referred to the hokum department.

"You know what?" the chief wisecracker demanded. "No, what?" "Well these here Japs are pretty good sports." "Yes; it looks like they were pretty good sports." "Do you know they took out licences for all their armoured cars and tanks and trucks? You didn't find the Germans getting licences for their trucks in France did you?" "No," I agreed. "Well okay. Let's drink a soup toast to Japan, the land of organization." And we did.

SCHOOL WORK DEMONSTRATED

Parents Attend Closing Exercises of Community Vocational Course

In the schoolroom of the Metropolitan United Church yesterday afternoon, the closing exercises connected with the Community Vocational School, which has been in progress there for the past three weeks were conducted. A programme exemplifying the work done by the institution was given, the children taking a very active part in demonstrating what is done in the course.

During the early evening, community singing was enjoyed, with accompaniment on the ukulele by Miss Evelyn Grieves.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Mrs. Copley, Miss Rose Murphy and Fred and Leslie Freer, who were warmly thanked for their splendid work.

Chief Engineer A. C. Pike acted as master of ceremonies in a genial manner.

TRANSIENTS IN NUMBERS ENTER
Kamloops, Prince George and Other Centres Appeal for Aid

Westward trek of unemployed out of other provinces in British Columbia continues apace, according to advice received by members of the Provincial Government, yesterday.

From Prince George, Kamloops and some other centres near rail communication have been reported the influx of numbers of idle men within the last few days.

Yesterday, Kamloops city officials got in touch with Acting-Premier Pooley, and reported on an acute condition there as a result of this influx. Kamloops city officials have asked Provincial aid in taking care of the situation, either by removal of the Dominion Government to the situation, or in some other way.

OTTAWA NOTIFIED
Acting-Premier Pooley got into communication with the Federal authorities at once by long distance telephone, drawing the attention of the Dominion Government to the serious drain that is being put upon British Columbia and British Columbia communities by the unchecked flow of idle men from other provinces.

Owed $2,400,000 on account of 1931 expenditures for unemployment relief on Dominion account, the Province is hoping for an immediate settlement of 1932 relief plans, along with whatever assistance the Dominion Government can extend this year.

The Provincial Government is carrying all of the cost of relief on Dominion account, and will have to seriously curtail such aid, unless Federal help arrives without much further delay.

Sports Feature Annual Outing

A lengthy programme of sports, which provided races for all who attended the outing, featured the annual picnic of the staff of Spencer's meat department, held at the Deep Cove Chaiet grounds on Wednesday afternoon. The chief events of the day were a softball game and a long distance swimming race, the former being won by a team captained by William Plater, while Walter Coutts was first in the swimming.

During the early evening, community singing was enjoyed, with accompaniment on the ukulele by Miss Evelyn Grieves.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Mrs. Copley, Miss Rose Murphy and Fred and Leslie Freer, who were warmly thanked for their splendid work.

WALES TO ADVERTISE

Wales wants tourists to visit it, and has decided that the way to get them to come is to advertise. Representatives of industrial cities and holiday resorts met recently at Aberystwyth and discussed how the attractions of the country could be made known to the world. George Curzon, assistant manager of the Travel Association of Great Britain, said that Wales had such attractions for visitors as historical ruins, romantic scenery, and climate.

Griffiths Jones, of Cardiff, said that Wales filled the imagination of travelers but lacked the necessary publicity. It was decided to form a travel and industrial development association for mid-Wales and the south, to examine the proposals for conducting an overseas publicity campaign with money raised by the local authorities, and to consider raising additional funds for home publicity.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Los Angeles will be the cynosure of all sportsmen's attention from today until August 16, a period during which the Olympic Games will be in progress. Los Angeles, in its propaganda about the great quadrennial meeting of the world's athletes, is not accurate in the statement as to the date of the first recorded Olympiad, for it places the event as 776 B.C. The Games, according to historical records, were instituted by the Iphigeneia in 1433 B.C., or as some say by Pelops in 1307 B.C., and they were revived by Iphigeneia in 884 B.C. in honor of Jupiter. They were held at the beginning of every fifth year on the banks of the Alpheus, near Olympia, to exercise the youths in five kinds of combats. The prize was a crown of wild olive.

In modern times the Games were revived in 1896, under conditions suited to latter day athletics, the first meet being held at Athens. Since then, with the exception of an omission during the war years, they have been held regularly: Paris, 1900; St. Louis, 1904; Athens, 1906; London, 1908; Stockholm, 1912; Antwerp, 1920; Paris, 1924; Amsterdam, 1928, and now Los Angeles. Berlin was to have held the Games in 1916, and because she missed them that year she has been awarded them for 1936. The Games at St. Louis in 1904 had only two countries besides the United States represented, and hardly counted in the cycle of the Olympic gathering.

There are 135 distinct events on the programme at Los Angeles, including fencing, gymnastics, boxing, wrestling, weight-lifting, athletics, rowing, swimming, equestrian sports, modern pentathlon, road cycling, yachting, field hockey, water polo, rifle and pistol shooting and Olympic fine arts. The stadium at Los Angeles has a capacity of 105,000 reserved seats, or 125,000 general admissions. The marathon, the blue ribbon of the Olympic Games, will start and finish in the stadium. The number of contestants in the different events is approximately 2,000, not as many as participated at Amsterdam in 1928, but still a sufficient host representative of many nations of the world.

WHITE COLLARS FOR COMMUNISTS

Coupled with the intense materialism that prevails in Soviet Russia there is an age of childlessness as well. The tradition of the reign of Bolshevism has been that white collars should not be worn, as the wearers were so identified with the old bourgeoisie. Now the All-Union Conference of Young Communists has rescinded the collarless age, and Young Communists may wear this "badge of respectability" because a "new period has begun" and Communists need no longer fear being mistaken for "intellectuals" merely on account of their dress.

Those in authority, having created the herd complex, are now seeking to encourage individuality anew. The Communist programme is being enlarged. Comrade Kosyreff, general secretary of the Central Committee of Young Communists, has taken the platform "in a white starched collar and a fashionable tie which only a year or two ago would have produced offensive laughter among his fellows." He also, according to the Soviet press, spoke earnestly about love of music and flowers and has occasionally informed his compatriots that these things may now be regarded as "within the Communist programme." Socialism, as practised in Russia, having attained to discipline the people into the conception that they are pawns of the state, has renounced that idea, in theory at least. Communists are no longer the opponents of neat attire. They may even have personal comfort, and individual tastes. State decrees, which formerly tended to the creation of mass slavery when Marxism was followed to the letter, are being replaced by an effort to infuse a breath of life and individuality among the masses. The age of repression in Russia has not produced the results anticipated, so now freer play is to be given to human characteristics.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATION RESULTS

Announcement has been officially made of the results of the matriculation and normal entrance examinations. The official statement of average marks and other data is, no doubt, as the news item stated, of interest to teachers in our schools, but it is also of interest to the public at large.

For example, it is interesting to observe that in English literature, composition, and grammar, the average mark was about 60 per cent, in French about 60 per cent, in Latin 65 per cent, in geometry 58 per cent, in algebra 49.6 per cent. How are these results to be interpreted? Are we to take it that our young people, according to a natural bent, do but fairly well in algebra, better in geometry, better still in English and French, and best of all in Latin? Or are we to understand that the figure reflects accurately the relative excellence of the instruction provided by the teaching staffs? Or is it that examiners, in spite of the undoubted improvement in examination methods during the past decade, have still much to learn in the difficult art of examination? The average mark in Latin is higher than that in English. Does this mean that modern teaching of Latin is more effective than modern teaching of English? It may mean that teachers of English have adopted higher standards and are consequently or unconsciously marking the examination papers with greater severity than formerly.

There is nothing new or surprising in the fact that algebra is at the bottom of the list with 49.6 per cent. Mathematics is a subject which actually demands a somewhat higher degree of accuracy than some others. In that realm every thing is either black or white. There are no intermediate shades of grey. In linguistic, literary, and historical matters it is notoriously difficult for an examiner to free himself from personal and subjective tendencies and influences. In mathematics the answer is right or wrong, the reasoning sound or defective, and it is comparatively easy to estimate the value of the candidate's work.

Educational policy is in the long run determined by social needs and, although educational practice is usually somewhat slow in adjusting itself to those needs, changes are inevitable. Among the social problems of the day that of education advocated by enthusiasts who seem to think that the public purse is inexhaustible is surely a very important one. The public has become sceptical of the wisdom of supplying facilities for high school and university education for young people of less than average capacity. It is probable that for some years at least it will be necessary to reduce the number of those who are to be allowed to go forward to the university at public charge. Clearly the examination system which controls these things is a matter of the highest interest not only to the teaching staffs but also to the ratepayers who have to find the money for the upkeep of the educational machine.

JAPAN AND MANCHURIA

The official Japanese statement to the League of Nations Manchurian Commission is to the effect that the new status of Manchuria is necessary for the safety of Japan, and also an indispensable barrier against the spread of Communism and the further disintegration of Eastern Asia. General Araki, the Japanese Minister of War, has asked the Commission in what condition it would have found Manchuria if Japan had lost the Russo-Japanese War. The implication is that Manchuria would now have been a Soviet province. Moreover, General Araki says that recognition of Manchukuo (Manchuria) is inevitable, and that it is waste of time to advocate Chinese suzerainty, because the restoration of Chinese influence would resurrect the former evils. That is a plain intimation that Japan intends to retain the influence she has won in Manchukuo. That is all the better for both the political and economic future of the erstwhile province of Manchuria.

A college professor has reproved Sir Thomas White for indulging in verse, and says financiers ought to stick to their knitting. Sir Thomas has the consolation of knowing that college professors are so environmentally circumscribed that some of them are the world's worst judges of poetry.

When he was fifty years old Mr. George Bernard Shaw said that in twenty years he would be "a useless old ass." He is now seventy-six years old. It must be left to his generation to judge of the accuracy of his utterances on the basis of what he said about himself over a quarter of a century ago.

THIS EVENING

She was a ship of burned gold
That crept across a violet sea
What wonders hidden in her hold,
What treasure, carried she?

A copper canopy of clouds
With rainbow fringes veiled the sky;
The sun blazed up through flaming shrouds
To watch her moving by.

Dark, opal waters, emerald-dyed,
Flushed crimson through their twilight blue;
The little islands shone with pride
As she wound slowly through.

What secret cargo of delight
Burned through her in that blaze of gold?
Flinging mauve shades of falling night
To glorify manhood?

Then suddenly she slipped away
Into the haze beyond the sea
And all the world turned cold and grey
So beautiful was she!

How shall the Press and people's rights
Maintain
Unmoved by influence and unbridled by gain
—Story.

We regret to note, but fear the regrettable note is true, that the Fourth Estate has fallen from its high estate. In the days when editors of newspapers were inclined to be somewhat proud of their position, one great editor used to print a legend in his paper to the effect that if it was printed in The Luminary it was true. Looking over a number of newspapers this morning, and making notes of their "news" dispatches from most parts of the world, we sorrowfully reach the conclusion that the paper is not news but fiction, mostly collected and distorted for malicious purposes. The United States press has its Hearst, the British press has its Beaverbrook and the Canadian press has its Vancouver newspapers.

The principal purpose of the Hearst press is to promote ill-feeling and turmoil in international affairs—to create an impression in the United States that the nations of Europe have joined themselves together for the purpose of shirking their obligations and dishonestly loading upon the shoulders of American taxpayers debts which should be borne by British, French, German and Italian taxpayers. Hearst declares that as the winners of the Great War, the American people are being defrauded of the legitimate fruits of victory, that instead of the victors being permitted to carry off the spoils, they are likely to be buried under an avalanche of financial debris accumulated during the war.

Beaverbrook, like Hearst, has his chain of newspapers, and the chief end of the Canadian press dictator is to be to accomplish the political downfall of Sir John. Stanley Baldwin, who has consistently and valiantly refused to submit to dictatorship from any source, however powerful. Beaverbrook indicates by his press policy that if it is necessary to bedevil the Imperial Economic Conference in order to accomplish the downfall of Mr. Baldwin, "so much the worse for the Imperial Conference." The Beaverbrook press has its observers at the Ottawa Conference, and it is safe to assume that whatever news is sent from the Canadian capital for publication in the Beaverbrook newspapers is not news at all, but rumor and fiction.

Vancouver is notoriously the criminal centre of Canada today. The police system of the city appears to have broken down, for indeed it ever stood up stoutly to its job of gathering in and dealing with criminals. Vancouver is of course the business centre of the Canadian Pacific Coast, and by reason of its preferred position assumes to be the centre of all provincial activities. It has arrogated to itself the position of political centre of British Columbia. Its newspapers, like the newspapers of Hearst and Beaverbrook, whose principles or lack of principles they have adopted, are undertaking to dictate to governments and to make and unmake political parties, or rather to set up political institutions which shall take no account of political parties. Every new issue of every Vancouver newspaper circulates new rumors predicting the downfall of governments and the dominance of some new political, or rather non-political, dispensation. The succeeding issues will print denials of the previous rumors and give currency to another set of rumors. Vancouver newspapers do not believe in the principle of telling the truth and shaming even the devil in the composing room, for they are not concerned about the reputation of the press and preventing it from becoming a byword in the estimation of the reading public.

Of course we know something which everybody with an eye to see and a mind to understand knows. That Vancouver has been terribly hard hit by the business depression. The people of the city are seething with unrest. They are practically all in the state of mind of the criminal element of the city. The criminals have no respect for the institutions of law and order. The lawless elements are a law unto themselves. The lawful elements believe the time has come for a change, for a change of any kind cannot be a change for the worse. A change of government would be for the better, if it diverted more political control from other parts of the province to Vancouver. Greater political control naturally would mean more if not better business. Hence Vancouver is the centre of rumors. The Vancouver newspapers profess to have their rumors manufacturing agents in the East, dogging the footsteps of Premier Tolmie, and we know they have their agents in Victoria making rumors about the activities of traitors in the government conspiring for the downfall of the Premier.

We fear the reputation of the press for truthfulness is not what it used to be—that instead of being an institution to look up to with confidence in its patriotism and integrity, it has become something to look down upon with derision and contempt.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaels

A HUNGRY MAN
I saw a hungry man today,
Stripped bare of things men prize:
His worldly mask was torn away,
Despair was in his eyes.

A hungry man, a broken man,
Who loitered on the brink
Of some forbidden evil plan.
For lack of food and drink
Oh, brotherhood, it is a theme
Of which, in happy times,
We love to build a shining dream,
To speak in flowing rhymes.

We sing of brothers, hand in hand,
Of burdens each should share;
But seldom do we understand
How hunger's fangs can tear!

I saw a man in need of bread
His look pierced through my heart.
Until all men are housed and fed
That pain will not depart!

Oh, brotherhood! May it at last
Find place in every breast,
So all bright visions of the past
May be in truth possessed!

JUNIOR WARDENS

KEEPING WATCH

More Than 2,000 Boys in Province Helping to Prevent Fire Menace

Throughout British Columbia 2,000 junior forest wardens are keeping watchful eyes on the forests. Their aim is to make British Columbia a "fireless" province.

They have been appointed by the Canadian Forestry Association, by Charles Wilkinson, manager of the British Columbia branch of the association.

The boys take their jobs seriously. Already they have prevented loss of millions of dollars. Many fires started by careless campers and smokers have been sighted by them before the fires could get out of hand.

Whenever possible the junior wardens warn campers and smokers to be careful that all fires are extinguished before leaving them.

The boys seek the co-operation of visitors to forest reserves and resorts.

By their vigilance they are performing a great service in the preserving the wealth and beauty of British Columbia forests.

OUR BOULEVARD TREES

Sir,—I have read with very great interest Mr. Hibberd's and Mr. Ross Humber's letters, also Mr. Barnum, to whom we owe a very deep debt of gratitude for what he has done for the preservation of some of the wonderful trees and timber of our Island for ourselves and posterity.

The very beautiful shade trees on Heywood Avenue and Cook Street have taken a long time to grow. The trees on Heywood Avenue were planted by the late Mr. Heywood, a very progressive and philanthropic early citizen of Victoria and a former mayor of the city. There were a number of subscribers who knew the value of and appreciated beautiful trees. Cook Street with its chestnuts in full bloom is a sight worth seeing. These trees are used in cities everywhere for shade trees almost more than any other tree.

Cariboo Scene of Active Search for New Placer Ground

Consistently Fair Prospects Found in Number of Areas of British Columbia, Provincial Mining Engineers Report, in Semi-Annual Survey

This season has witnessed one of the largest movements of gold seekers over the Cariboo Highway that has occurred in many years, declares A. M. Richmond, assistant resident mining engineer, who made a special survey of mining activity along the Fraser River, and in the Clinton and Yale mining divisions early this year. In his report to the Department of Mines he says that hundreds of men went north in search of placer gold this year.

From observations along the lower Fraser River, where 150 men are working in groups of two, three, four or more, the average return per day per man was nearer 25 cents than 50 cents. Occasionally rich returns were recovered by careful mining of pay-dirt from under the large boulders, and nuggets valued at as much as $10 have in one or two instances, been discovered.

SYNDICATE METHODS
Most of the small operations are using the rocker for washing; the syndicate operations, of which there are several, generally are using centrifugal or suction pumps and short sluice boxes for gold recovery. Sand and gravel suction nozzles for gravels up to about two inches in diameter, are being used with considerable success at several points along the river, the average cost of moving ground ranging from 40 to 60 cents per cubic yard plus wages. In favorable localities this cost can be considerably reduced.

Mr. Richmond expresses the opinion that those contemplating placer mining should be prepared to support themselves for a period of at least three months before they enter into the business with the idea that only very slight returns are definitely assured, but with good returns always a possibility.

VANCOUVER ISLAND
The search for gold on Vancouver Island and in the Lower Mainland is dealt with by G. A. Cloughier, resident mining engineer at Vancouver, in his report for the first six months of the current year. Mr. Cloughier states that prospectors have gone into the area at the head of the San Juan and Leech Rivers, where conditions are similar to the Bridge River country, and gold discoveries have been reported in the area around the headwaters of Nanaimo River.

The operations of Messrs. McDonald and Butterworth, on the Leech River, near Victoria, are described in some detail. It is stated that a cut across the old bed gave encouraging gold values, but further work along the bedrock will be necessary to prove the importance of the ground.

The syndicate installed a small hydraulic plant, and moved a big yardage of gravel in making the cut through the gravel bank from the present river to the discovery of the old channel. The proportion of possible "pay" gravel to waste material necessary to work to recover the gold, is probably less than 30 per cent, and consequently careful testing is essential.

IN LILLOOET AREA
Mr. Cloughier's district includes the Lillooet mining division, consequently mining operations in and around the Bridge River come within his jurisdiction. He says that as far as Bridge River is concerned he cannot recommend it for individual placer mining. There have been a few rich spots found, but it is doubtful if anyone could make anything on the bars or along the banks of the river.

Mr. Cloughier adds that he would warn anyone against paying money to leaseholders for the privilege of placer mining on such ground. On the Fraser River, it is stated by the engineer, different conditions hold, for about the only chance the individual placer miner has is in working the benches and bars during the low water period.

IN BOUNDARY DISTRICT
An interesting account of placer mining operations on Rock Creek, in the Boundary District, is given by P. B. Freeland, resident mining engineer for No. 4 Mineral Survey District. He says that operations at this point received a distinct impetus during the last few weeks when two outfits working with pick, shovel and sluice boxes, after driving sixty-five feet through a high channel rim, struck gravel containing pay valued at $3 a cubic yard. Some $4 and $5 nuggets have been recovered.

The gold found is coarse, rusty, and most of it is rough-edged, suggesting that it may not have traveled far. Prospects apparently are good enough to warrant the installation of a 40-horsepower engine pump and monitor, which will be used to hydraulic the gravels lying on the old channel.

SILVER AND GOLD
In the workings some heavy galena pyrite ore has been found which assays about 80 oz. in gold and 120 oz. in silver, to the ton. This ore has not been found in place at present, and appears to have been broken from some vein having its origin higher up the bench.

The galena crystals are well preserved and possibly, as in the case of White's Bar, the richest find on Rock Creek in the old days, an enormous section of gold-bearing quartz has been broken off and only partly concentrated by the stream. The presence of gold in the old high channels has been reported before, but not until this year has any attempt been made to prospect these channels.

GROUND AVAILABLE
There are many other leases which appear to be just attractive in this area, and upon which no development has been done. Regarding placer mining on the Similkameen and Bulkley Rivers and in adjoining streams, and a careful search for old high channels is being made. On the Bulkley River, several small operations are being conducted with success.

SCHEDULE CHANGED
Commencing Monday, August 1, the steamship schedule between here and Seattle will be altered slightly. The P.R. steamers from Seattle will arrive at 1 p.m., and leave for Vancouver at 2 p.m., arriving in latter port at the same time as on the old schedule. The arrival from Seattle and departure for Vancouver on this new schedule will be fifteen minutes later than on the former schedule.

YUKON DUE TODAY
The Alaska Steamship Company's vessel Yukon will arrive here this afternoon from Seattle en route to Alaskan ports. There are approximately 150 passengers on board, who will disembark here to take a sight-seeing trip, after which they will return to the liner, which will sail north at 6 p.m.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE FAVORS OF FATE
Whatever the Mr. H. H. Humphrey, of Sydney, New South Wales, may do in the course of his playing contract, he will never again fail against the luck of the cards, after his experience in a recent card game. As Mr. Humphrey tells the story, he strolled into the club the other day for a game, and the first hand he picked up was the South hand pictured below. When the deal was completed, Mr. Humphrey, looking at his perfect Yarborough, hoped his partner could bid to prevent what he feared might be an impending slam. He brightened a little when he heard North bid two clubs, as while any game contract with his cards appeared hopeless, unless North held "the deck," certainly a hand strong enough for an opening forcing bid of two at least guaranteed the partnership against loss of the game.

SAANICH HAS FINE RECORD

High Health Average Maintained in Municipality for Ten Months

An enviable record for general health over a period of ten months has been completed by the municipality of Saanich, it was learned yesterday from Dr. David Berman, medical health officer, who stated that since the beginning of the 1931-32 school term last September until the end of June, not a single case of serious infection had occurred in the municipality. The only illnesses reported to the Saanich Health Centre during that time were mild cases of chicken pox and measles.

"Despite all this," Dr. Berman stated, "the yearly attendance percentage at the schools was 84.12 per cent, which is 12 per cent higher than the best attendance record since before the full-time Saanich Health Centre took over the medical and nursing work among the school children."

EFFICIENT STAFF
This record is the finest that has ever been obtained in Saanich and speaks well for the staff of the institution, members of which have been ever alert during the year, watching for the slightest indication of an outbreak of any description.

MONTHLY REPORT
Dr. Berman's monthly report for June shows that seventy-two cases of measles were treated during the month; these, however, being only outbreaks of a very minor nature. Nursing visits during the month totaled 111, while 257 nursing visits were made. Nurses inspected 1,147 school children in this period, 428 of whom were examined by the medical officer. One hundred and fifty-seven minor treatments were given at school and 165 infant welfare visits made.

Dr. Berman expressed himself as being greatly satisfied with the record, which is remarkable when the size of the municipality and the varying health conditions are realized.

THREE BROTHERS ARE SHOT DOWN

Killed in Restaurant by Gang of Five in Heart of City of Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Three Volpe brothers—John, Johnnie and Arthur—long political powers in the Borough of Wilmerding, were shot and killed in a gun battle here today.

The shooting occurred in a coffee shop in what is known as the "Hill District," not far from the centre of the city.

Johnnie Volpe, shot near the heart, staggered from the coffee shop and fell dead in the gutter. His two brothers were dead when police reached the scene.

About a year ago, the Volpes, who have been implicated in liquor racketeering, sought to extend their activities to Pittsburgh. The district in which they were killed is the heart of the new territory they invaded.

CONFERENCE IS TOPIC OF HOUR

Leading English Weekly Journals Comment on Ottawa Gathering

LONDON, July 29 (CP).—All the leading English weekly journals unite in commenting on the Imperial Economic Conference as the topic of the hour.

The Spectator, an independent opinion, reviews the situation in cautious but optimistic terms. "A great deal can be done at Ottawa," said this paper. "The first ten days have been altogether encouraging."

It gives warning, however, that if the Dominions have their way, the net result will likely be an increase in world tariffs. "With every desire to co-operate to the utmost, Great Britain cannot afford to sacrifice itself to the Dominions. The future is with them in any case. Under no circumstances can we tax the food of our vast empire."

"The British nation," said the Daily Review, "after its forced plunges into protection, is more firmly resolved than ever on the freest possible world trade, but the Dominions are slow to observe the mania of high tariffs, which they imagine Great Britain can be persuaded to shape. The Dominions' pressure of the facts, Meats while the attempt to build a bridge is proving quite as difficult as it looked."

ECONOMY BEST PRESENT POLICY

Bruhn Surveys Conditions—Premier's Stay at Ottawa Will Bring Benefits

SALMON ARM, July 29 (CP).—A vote of confidence in Hon. R. W. Bruhn, representative of the constituency, and a resolution urging the Government to co-operate with the Liberal and Labor parties with a view to formation of a coalition government, were adopted at a meeting of Salmon Arm constituents here today.

Besides an address by Mr. Bruhn, several other speeches were heard in discussion of the value of a coalition government for the province.

LOYAL TO GOVERNMENT
Mr. Bruhn said he would be loyal to the Tolmie administration. He surveyed present conditions within the province, and declared that strict economy was the best policy which the Government could follow at the present time.

Absence of Premier S. F. Tolmie in Ottawa was regretted by Mr. Bruhn, but he declared it would not be in the best interests of the province to have the Premier return without obtaining some understanding from the Federal Government regarding the unemployment relief.

Premier Tolmie's presence at the Imperial Conference, he said, would prove beneficial to British Columbia.

With regard to coalition, Mr. Bruhn said that the representatives should come from all parts of the province. He had his own opinions on the matter, which would be exercised, and he believed the people would be satisfied with the action which would be taken and the changes contemplated in constitutions.

Privy Council Finds Statute Concerning Territorial Waters Intra Vires

LONDON, July 29 (CP).—Allowing the appeal of E. R. Croft from the Supreme Court of Canada today, Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council upheld the validity of the Canadian statute which enacts that so far as Canadian vessels are concerned Canadian territorial waters extend for twelve marine miles from the coast.

It has long been recognized, the judgment points out, that for certain purposes, notably police, revenue, public health and fisheries, a state may enact laws affecting ships on the sea to a distance exceeding the ordinary limits of its territory once it was found that the particular topic of legislation was among those on which the Dominion Parliament might competently legislate.

NO REASON TO RESTRICT
Their Lordships saw no reason to restrict the permitted scope of such legislation by any other consideration than that of the fully sovereign state. They held it difficult to conceive that the Imperial Parliament regarding customs should have the power to enact provisions similar in scope to those which had long been an integral part of the Imperial customs legislation.

The action originated from the seizure of a schooner, registered at Digby, N.S., and owned by Sylvester Dunphy, with a cargo of liquor in June, 1928, by a national revenue patrol boat of which E. R. Croft was the commander.

BOUGHT DAMAGES
Dunphy sought the return of the vessel and cargo, or payment of their value and damages for their retention. The defence was that the vessel had no dutiable goods on board, was "hovering" within twelve marine miles of the coast and was liable to seizure.

Dunphy contended the seizure was made on the high seas and the legislation invoked was ultra vires. The Supreme Court of Canada divided on the case, the majority holding the relevant section of the Customs Act was ultra vires in so far as it enacts that "territorial waters of Canada," shall for the purposes of Sections 151 and 207 of the act, include (for vessels registered in Canada) the water within twelve marine miles of Canada. The Privy Council's finding reverses this decision.

NEW YORK MAYOR DENIES CHARGES

Governor Studying Walker's Reply to Suggestions of Dishonesty and Corruption

ALBANY, N.Y., July 29.—James J. Walker's denial of official dishonesty or corruption as mayor of New York City was being studied today by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Walker's reply to Samuel Seabury's complaint that he was unfit to remain in office was submitted to the Governor yesterday. In 27,000 words he set forth his reasons for contending Seabury and others who sought his removal were wrong in believing he had used his office for personal gain.

DENIES ALL CONCLUSIONS
The mayor denied specifically each of the 15 "conclusions" set forth by Seabury and on the basis of which his removal was asked. He assailed bitterly the counsel of the Roosevelt legislative committee, informing Governor Roosevelt in one instance: "Mr. Seabury deliberately falsified the meaning of the record." He accused Seabury of "deliberate wilfulness" and "deliberate deception" in his campaign to remove him from office.

Receipt of the Walker reply meant that the major obstacle which had been delaying the Roosevelt presidential campaign was about to be cleared.

PALACE BRISTLING WITH MACHINE GUNS

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 29.—Eight truckloads of machine guns bristled yesterday at the presidential palace today, brought there at midnight following rumors of discord in the army and political rumblings against the Government of Carlos Dávila. The machine gun defence was ordered out by the Cabinet, which remained in session through the night.

Reports were in circulation that several Cabinet changes would be announced soon.

FAINTED AND DROWNED IN SHALLOW WATER

Miss Wiseman was spending a holiday at the lake with her mother, Mrs. George Wiseman, of Lumsden. No inquest will be held.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 29.—Who was the most interesting athlete quartered at the Olympic village among the 2,000 sets of time-honored systems now waiting for the starting gun?
One vote at least must go to Patrick O'Callaghan, of Ireland, hammer thrower, decaathlete star and boxer. I dropped by to call on Patrick O'Callaghan just as he was having a rub down, and for a minute I thought someone had carted one of California's Pazul red wool into camp.

Dr. O'Callaghan not only weighs 240 pounds but every ounce of this is iron. Carrying all this displacement, he has high jumped above 6 feet 4 inches, and that gives you some idea as to how active he is. He is a much more powerfully built man than Jim London or George Carpentier. Lord Burghley, and you get the impression he could take them together and break them like brittle sticks.

If I expect to enter the hammer throw, he said, "and the decaathlon. After that I may take a shot at the boxing, but that will depend on how I feel." He happens to be one of the best amateur boxers in the world. He will be something to look at, and a good eye for the side.

Another vote goes to Lord David Burghley, captain of the British team, who looks something like George Carpentier. Lord Burghley is the only athlete in the world who can look at thirty-five Rembrandts hanging in his own home and then take a warm-up jog through 40,000 acres without leaving his own domain. Yet he is the most democratic member of the village, keen, alert, gracious and always ready with a quick smile and unlimited courtesy.

Without admitting the same openly, the figure of the 400-metre hurdle race will be a battle between himself and Facelli, of Italy, and most others think the same. Here is a great competitor.

He beat Facelli when he hurled the last hurdle, and he ran thirty yards before the finish line. He was a warm-up jog through 40,000 acres without leaving his own domain. Yet he is the most democratic member of the village, keen, alert, gracious and always ready with a quick smile and unlimited courtesy.

Another unusual figure happens to be a slender, young-looking sprinter by the name of Percy Williams, of Canada. He has won enough in 1928 to win both the 100 and 200-metre races at Amsterdam. He is a warm-up jog through 40,000 acres without leaving his own domain. Yet he is the most democratic member of the village, keen, alert, gracious and always ready with a quick smile and unlimited courtesy.

Miss Amy Johnson And Mr. J. A. Mollison Married in London

Wedding Takes Place at St. George's, Hanover Square—Groom to Leave in Ten Days' Time for Transatlantic Flight

LONDON, July 29 (CP).—With enormous crowds surrounding the church, J. A. Mollison and Miss Amy Johnson, famous British long distance flyers, were married today, ten days before Mollison is scheduled to take off on a transatlantic flight.

It was an informal wedding at St. George's Church, in Hanover Square, the most notable church of notable marriages. Miss Johnson was driven to the church in a sports car by Kathleen, Countess of Drogheda, who gave her away. The bride's parents and sisters traveled by car from Hull, but the land route proved too slow and they arrived too late.

Miss Johnson wore a walking costume for the ceremony. There were no bridesmaids and no music.

In March, Mollison set a new speed record from London to Cape Town, South Africa. Miss Johnson told newspapermen such flights were "easy." In May, however, their engagement was announced a few hours after Mollison's arrival in London. When he announced his plan to fly the Atlantic, Miss Johnson said she would like to go with him, but since then they have not discussed their plans.

The bride, popularly known as "Johnny," is famed for her solo flight to Australia in fifteen days. Last year she failed in her first attempt at a flight to Tokyo, across Siberia, but she tried again and made the round trip.

Household Hint

Chiffon frocks may be washed at home with every success in the following manner. There is not always time to send a chiffon frock to the cleaners and it is always useful to know that the frock can be treated at home in an emergency. Fill a wide-necked bottle with warm soapy water and slip the frock inside. Shake the bottle gently, changing the water when it becomes soiled, until the chiffon is clean. Rinse the frock in cold water and pass it through a weak solution of gum water. The gum water should be made by dissolving half an ounce of gum arabic in ten tablespoonsful of boiling water. Use about three tablespoonsful of gum water to half a pint of water and immerse the frock in this solution. Roll up in a cloth and iron under a cloth.

CARTOONIST WAS BRIEF VISITOR

Sydney Smith, the creator of the Gumps, Stopped Off in City Between Boats

Sydney Smith, the creator of Andy Gump and other famed figures of the comic sections of the newspapers, paid a brief visit to Victoria, yesterday, stopping off only long enough between the arrival of the steamer from Seattle until it sailed for Vancouver to transact a little business and take a look over the city.

The cartoonist was accompanied by Mrs. Smith and his secretary, W. Korsland. He is on his way to Banff and Lake Louise for a short holiday. He has been on the Pacific Coast on a short vacation for several weeks.

An insurance agent called upon Mrs. Potter for her weekly premium, and she informed him of her intention to remove immediately. "And when may I expect the van?" she asked. Not quite understanding the question, the agent asked her for an explanation, and eventually discovered that a furniture van was what she required. "Yes," continued Mrs. Potter, "the company does all that, you know, free of charge. 'The company' is the agent. 'Furniture van'—free!" "Look here," said the lady with an air of finality. "Here's a list of your rules—'Members removing from one district to another will be transferred free of charge.'"

NEW YORK, July 29 (AP).—Women of the United States are taking up the monocle as a fashion feature for the Fall season.

Careful Gowning Will Give Effect of Height

Straight Lines Show Characteristic Dress of Short Girl Is Make Her Look Taller—Uniformity of Color Essential

By GLADYS OLAD

That talented little screen star, Sidney Fox, is in my opinion one of the most attractive and charming girls in the movie Mecca.

I don't think many folks will disagree with me on that point. But despite her loveliness and the success she is achieving in the talkies, Sidney has her problems, too.

Just as do you, you and you. And the one that troubles her the most is her lack of height.

For Sidney is only sixty inches tall. And she certainly has to use her wits in order to keep herself from appearing dumpy.

There are quite a number of girls who are in Sidney's boots in this respect. Girls who are short and who realize their lack of height. But the unfortunate part of it is that they do not possess Sidney's knowledge of how to combat this handicap.

It is chiefly through her gowning that Sidney succeeds in doing away with this problem. And if proper gowning can do it for you, you and you, too.

LENGTH OF LINE
The first thing the short girl must strive for in her gowning is length of line. Jackets, boleros, belted frocks and cape dresses are not for such as she. They all cut the figure, and thus tend to reduce its apparent height. And that's just the opposite of what the short girl desires. Bouffant skirts or widely flaring skirts are also unwise for her to wear for exactly the same reason. Vertically-striped dresses, small-figured frocks, gowns with contrasting panels and vesties are all kindred to her type of figure.

Another thing she should avoid is wearing large wide-brimmed hats or hats and shoes of different shades. All these tend to cut off her height. If the observer's eye can sweep without interruption from hat to shoes, the effect is very flattering to the short woman. Hats should be small, and shoes, hats and all accessories should, if possible, match the shade of the frock worn. Every attempt should be made to emphasize the vertical lines of the figure and subdue the horizontal ones, so that an effect of tall slenderness may be achieved.

England's Postoffice Department showed a profit of nearly $33,000,000 in the last financial year.

CANAL IS READY FOR LAKE SHIPS

New Wetland Waterway Will Be Officially Opened by Lord Bessborough on August 6

MONTREAL, July 29.—On Saturday, August 6, His Excellency Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, will declare the new ship canal open. Addresses, which will be carried by radio to listeners throughout Canada and the United States, will be delivered by the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada; Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals; Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, and others.

The ceremony will be attended by British delegates to the Imperial Economic Conference, and it is expected that there will be a tremendous gathering of Canadians from near and far.

The new Wetland Canal is the first in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Deep Waterway, and is the fourth canal to be built in the last hundred years connecting Lakes Erie and Ontario.

The canal ranks with the Panama as one of the world's greatest, and in some respects exceeds the Panama. While the locks of the latter are a little longer and wider, the total lift up and down between the two canals is only eighty-five feet, covered by three locks each way, whereas the lift in the new Wetland Canal is 325 feet, covered by seven locks of forty-six and one-half feet each, and an eighth grand lock, 1,380 feet long, or 300 feet longer than the longest Panama lock. These replace twenty-five locks in the old canal.

MURDER OF HAZELMOOR

by AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXVI

"But my dear young lady," said Mr. Kirkwood, "what can you possibly expect to find at Hazelmoor. All Captain Trevelyan's effects have been removed. The police have made a thorough search of the house. I don't want to get the atmosphere of the place. Please let me have the key. There's no harm in it."

"I don't expect to find anything," Emily replied, "or to notice anything that the police have overlooked. I can't explain to you, Mr. Kirkwood, why I want to get the atmosphere of the place. Please let me have the key. There's no harm in it."

"Certainly there's no harm in it," said the solicitor with dignity. "Then, please be kind," said Emily.

So Mr. Kirkwood was kind and handed over the key with an indulgent smile. He did his best to come with her, which catastrophe was only averted by great tact and firmness on Emily's part.

That morning Emily had received a letter. It was couched in the following terms:

"Dear Miss Trevelyan," wrote Mrs. Belling of the Three Crowns, "You said as how you would like to hear if anything at all should happen that was in the way of your common even if not important, and, as this is peculiar, though not in any way important, I thought it my duty to let you know at once, hoping this will catch you by the last post tonight or by the first post tomorrow. My niece she came round and said it wasn't of importance I felt it my duty to write and hoping this finds you as it leaves me at present and hoping you are not worrying too much about the young gentleman. I remain miss yours truly—Mrs. J. Belling."

Emily had read and reread this letter. She had discussed it with Charles. "It doesn't seem to make sense," "It must mean something," Emily pointed out. "I mean—why a pair of boots is missing?" "You don't think Evans is inventing?" "Why should he? And after all, if people do invent, they invent something sensible. Not a silly pointless thing like this." "Boots suggest something to do with footprints," said Charles thoughtfully.

"I know. But footprints don't seem to enter into this case at all. Perhaps it hadn't come on to snow again."

"Yes, perhaps, but even then."

"Could he have given them to some tramp?" suggested Charles, "and then the tramp did him in?" "I suppose that's possible," said Emily, "but it doesn't sound very like Captain Trevelyan. He might perhaps have found a man some work to do or given him a shilling, but he wouldn't have pressed his best winter boots on him."

"Well, I give it up," said Charles. "By hook or by crook I'm going to get to the bottom of it."

Accordingly she came to Exetermoor and went into the Three Crowns where Mrs. Belling received her with great enthusiasm.

"And your young gentleman in prison miss? Well, it's a cruel shame and none of us don't believe it was him. At least I would like to hear them say so when I am about. So you got my letter? You like it to see Evans? Well, he lives right round the corner, 85 Fore Street."

Emily wished I could come with you, but I can't leave the place, but you can't mistake it."

Emily did not mistake it. Evans himself was out, but Mrs. Evans received her and invited her in. Emily sat down and induced Mrs. Evans to do so also and plunged straight into the matter on hand.

"I've come to talk about what your husband told Mrs. Belling. I mean about a pair of Captain Trevelyan's boots being missing."

"It's an odd thing, to be sure," said the girl.

"Your husband is quite certain about it?"

"Oh, yes. Wore these boots most of the time in winter, the captain did. Big ones they were, and he wore a couple of pairs of socks inside them."

Emily nodded.

"They can't have gone to be mended anything like that?" she suggested.

"Not without Evans knowing, they couldn't," said his wife boastfully.

"No, I suppose not."

"It's queer like," said Mrs. Evans, "but I don't suppose I had anything to do with the murder, do you miss?"

"It doesn't seem likely," agreed Emily.

"Seeing as that the inspector from Exeter was here again today, I thought as though they might."

"Inspector Narracott?"

"Yes, that's the one, miss."

"Did he come by train?"

"No, he came by car. He went to the Three Crowns first and asked Trevelyan's house and nothing was in a manner of speaking nothing that is of any value, but something there missing though not noticed at the time being unimportant. But it seems miss that a pair of the Captain's boots is missing which Evans noticed when he went over the things with Mrs. Burnaby. Though I don't suppose it is of any importance I thought it my duty to write and hoping this finds you as it leaves me at present and hoping you are not worrying too much about the young gentleman. I remain miss yours truly—Mrs. J. Belling."

Emily had read and reread this letter. She had discussed it with Charles. "It doesn't seem to make sense," "It must mean something," Emily pointed out. "I mean—why a pair of boots is missing?" Just Roamin' Around

By TWO ROVERS

As you are no doubt aware, two rovers love cricket. And no wonder! We learned to play cricket at six years of age on the yellow sands at Douglas Bay, first of all, then, later, at our first preparatory school. Then at another preparatory school, also in the Isle of Man; then, at three different public schools, and after some years spent in sojourning in several countries in Europe we took up the good old game again in British Columbia. We were it not for our having contracted certain disabilities whilst overseas, which we don't worry about since we have found many compensations for having to give up the noble game of cricket. One of these compensations is that we are able, fortunately, to see a cricket match every Wednesday afternoon and another every Saturday afternoon, and we saw the Australians in their three matches on Vancouver Island only a few weeks ago, and now they are due here again in two weeks, so we can have another good look all day and see what we consider the finest and sportiest game in the world, played as it should be played, on August 15 and 16, at the University School cricket grounds. And may be have Summer weather!

What Today Means

"LEO"

If July 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., and from 10:15 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The stellar influences at work on July 30 are liable to bring confusion and doubt, unless you take a firm hold of yourself and refuse to be over-anxious or skeptical. If, practically, it would be advisable to attend to routine duty, and avoid all paths that are untidy and untrod.

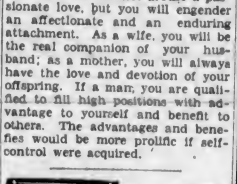

If a child born on this July 30 will be precocious, without being annoying. It promises to develop into a fruitful adult, with very clear ideas as to what it wants and a keen perception of the means needed to attain its goal. Its nature will be generous and kind.

You, if born on July 30, are an excellent and quick-tempered, especially when trifles are concerned. Let the slightest thing go wrong and your scheme of things and you yourself a little later on. Unless this tendency is curbed, the habit will grow on you and your old age will be a weary and crabbed. You will become a busybody, not only to yourself but to others.

You have, what for the sake of a better name can be called an artistic temperament. And yet, with it all, you can be practical and sensible. You have a big heart, and anything that favors of injustice quickly arouses all your sympathies for the victim. Your impulses are generous, and you are incapable of meanness or unkindness.

If a woman, you scorn flattery.

How It Started

By J. M. NEWTON

"THE STRAITS" WE ARE IN

"They are in terrible straits!" "In great straits!" "They want to conceal the straits they are in." We have an inquiry as to the significance and origin of that word.

A strait is a narrow pass or passage familiar to us in modern speech as a water passageway connecting two larger bodies of water. Formerly, however, the word was used for such a narrow passage not necessarily of water, as in Tennessee:

"A dark strait of barren land." And from that we have, figuratively, a strait as a condition of narrowness or restriction, difficulty and distress. This is more familiar in the plural form, as "reduced to great straits."

A Rumanian deputy recently spoke for fifty-seven hours in the Rumanian Parliament.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Old Mr. Toad Is Horrified
—By THORNTON W. BURGESS—

Who shuts his eyes and will not see. Knows little of how things may be. —Old Mother Nature.

Old Mr. Toad is quite at home in the water. He swims well, for his feet have short, thick webbs between the toes. But he isn't in the same class with his cousin, Grandfather Frog. No, sir, he isn't in the same class when it comes to swimming. The way in which Grandfather Frog can drive himself through the water with those long, strong legs of his and those big hind-feet, fully webbed, is beautiful to see.

Old Mr. Toad feels at home in the water because that is where he was born, but he doesn't begin to be at home there as Grandfather Frog is. You see, after all, Old Mr. Toad's home is in the Smiling Pool garden, while Grandfather Frog's home is in the Smiling Pool. A remarkable old fellow is Grandfather Frog, who, because he is old is accounted wise, and often falls to live up to his reputation. He can live on land and breathe air just as you and I do, and all in a flash he can dive to the bottom of the Smiling Pool and stay down there as long as he wants to, for days at a time if he feels like it, with no inconvenience whatever from lack of air to breathe. You see, he has strong legs of his and those big hind-feet, fully webbed, is beautiful to see.

Old Mr. Toad feels at home in the water because that is where he was born, but he doesn't begin to be at home there as Grandfather Frog is. You see, after all, Old Mr. Toad's home is in the Smiling Pool garden, while Grandfather Frog's home is in the Smiling Pool. A remarkable old fellow is Grandfather Frog, who, because he is old is accounted wise, and often falls to live up to his reputation. He can live on land and breathe air just as you and I do, and all in a flash he can dive to the bottom of the Smiling Pool and stay down there as long as he wants to, for days at a time if he feels like it, with no inconvenience whatever from lack of air to breathe. You see, he has strong legs of his and those big hind-feet, fully webbed, is beautiful to see.

Old Mr. Toad was sitting on the edge of the bank. When he saw Mr. Toad, he didn't for a fact. You see, Grandfather Frog appeared to have two pairs of legs, and an extra pair was where his mouth should be, and was. Those legs seemed to be growing out of his mouth.

Old Mr. Toad sat, open-mouthed, and stared in astonishment. Then he was sure that it was Grandfather Frog and he knew that those legs were not growing from his mouth. Even as he watched, they disappeared a little farther in, until Grandfather Frog was swallowing the owner of those legs! Yes, sir, that was what was happening. The owner of those legs was going down Grandfather Frog's throat head first.

Old Mr. Toad was horrified. Yes, the next story: "The Glutton of the Smiling Pool."

PANDORA GENERAL MARKET FOR HOME PRODUCTS OPENED

Many Attend Initial Day of New Marketing Centre
Where Bargain Prices Are Maintained by Stallholders—Thirty-Six Producers Occupy Space in New Enterprise

TODAY, more than ever before, all thoughts are turned to home purchase, for the belief is widespread that herein lies the solution of present conditions. In no branch of industry is the need for this movement more apparent than in that of farming, and realizing this, far-seeing Victoria business men have established an up-to-date market in which the stallholders come in direct contact with the buying public.

The Pandora General Market is the title of the new establishment situated in the building formerly occupied by Maynard & Sons' auction rooms, before their recent move. The site was selected by Messrs. A. Garvin and J. Ivey some time ago and during the past few weeks complete renovation and redecoration has been carried out. The contract for the work was allotted to Dickhout & Edwards, and the manner in which it has been carried out reflects great credit on those responsible both for the planning and the execution.

IMPROVE PREMISES

The many patrons of Maynard's Auction Rooms will remember that these original premises were finished in wood, with a raised dais running down each side of the building. These have been taken out and a concrete floor laid, while wall and ceiling linings have been completely changed. The entire finish is in white, giving a bright and clean atmosphere, aiding the natural lighting facilities, and allowing an attractive display of wares. Down each wall, and on both sides of a deep panel running down the centre of the floor, are arranged thirty-six stalls, each a complete store in itself, fully equipped to handle the line of goods specialized in. Farm produce, flowers, vegetables, meats and poultry, form a large percentage of the lines carried, with handicraft and novelties interspersed. An instance of the complete equipment and the permanent type of stalls is the electric refrigeration in the meat department, insuring the same high standard of sanitation as is found in any up-town store. The management has installed up-to-date plumbing and lighting facilities throughout the entire building, giving the stallholders every convenience. It is the intention of the management to keep this market open six days a week, and in the lunch counter portion of the building, patrons may secure up-to-date lunches and teas, thus giving real service to those housewives who search the adjoining stalls for real value in local produce.

Many new buildings are being erected in Mexico City, Mexico.

Farmers and Other Producers Sell to Consumer at New Centre
on Pandora Avenue

It was not until an outlet for strictly local produce was provided, such as the newly-established Pandora General Market, that the resources of Victoria and district were fully realized. In the immediate vicinity of the city are well-established farms, capable of producing the finest fruit, vegetables, dairy products and meats, equaling any which can be imported from outside points. Fish, of course, is locally procured by the fishermen of the Island waters. Brushes and novelties, manufactured in the city, are commodities that comparatively few people know lie within the resources of Victoria and the Cowichan district are well represented in the showing of locally-produced merchandise, and these are on an

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

YOUR BODY NEEDS LIME

When you think of the solid bones of the body, how they support your entire weight and give attachment to the muscles, it may never occur to you that although they look so hard and solid, nevertheless they contain 99 per cent of the lime in the body and they are giving up lime to the body all the time. I have often spoken about lime and its great value in helping to build up the cells of the body, and how it helps to ward off infection, increases the healing power of the tissues, and helps coagulate the blood. As far as the mineral needs of the body are concerned, lime stands first; thus your health depends to a great extent upon getting a sufficient amount of lime into the body every day. It is just here that these hard

Arrested When Leaving Court And Taken Back

CALGARY, July 29 (CP).—Chester Aikens, forty-two-year-old Calgary mechanic, sat in police court as a spectator today and heard three men plead guilty to breaking into the Carleton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. After admitting their guilt, William Graham, Walter Cantwell and Fred Stevens were remanded until Monday for sentence.

Aikens left the court and walked into the arms of waiting Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers, and was taken back to face a similar charge. Cantwell said he had obtained detonators and explosives from Aikens for the purpose of blowing open the bank safe.

An accusing glitter in her bright eyes, she faced her husband.

"What is this long dark hair on your coat, Henry?" she demanded.

"Oh—er—a horsehair, my love!" stammered Henry, hoping for the best.

"Most likely!" sneered the good lady. "And no doubt you got it in a motor car?"

"Exactly, my dear. The seat covering was worn through, and some of the stuffing came out."

OLYMPIC GAMES TO OPEN IN LOS ANGELES TODAY

Marjorie Leeming Reaches Final of Women's Singles in Canadian Tourney

Victorian Pushes Aside U.S. Threat In Straight Sets

To Seek Third Crown Against Olive Wade, Toronto, Today—George Lott and Frankie Parker, Two Americans, Work Way to Men's Final—Lott and Rainville Win Doubles

RIDEAU TENNIS CLUB, OTTAWA, July 29 (CP).—A Canadian-American pair, George Lott, of Chicago, and Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, will play in the Canadian men's tennis doubles quarter-finals today. The combination of Lott, a famous doubles star, and the steady French-Canadian, took the first title decided in the national tennis championships today, defeating Gilbert Nunn, Toronto, and Walter Martin, Regina, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

The Earl and Countess of Bessborough were among the large gallery which saw the crown go to the international team.

Despite intermittent showers which halted some matches two and three times, semi-finals were declared in every other division of the championships.

Canadians were eliminated from the men's singles, today, and the final will be an all-United States affair between George Lott and the sixteen-year-old Milwaukee marvel, Frankie Parker. Lott disposed of Marcel Rainville, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, and the boy wonder from Wisconsin defeated the tall Regina, Walter Martin, 6-0, 6-3, 6-3.

MISS LEEING WINS

The last foreign threat was thrust aside in the women's singles and the final tomorrow will be an all-Canadian match between two players who have each won the title twice before. Olive Wade, of Toronto, who was forced out of the Wimbledon championships this year by illness, showed she had completely recovered her strength and playing ability by beating another Torontonian, Jean Adele Burritt, 6-1, 6-3. Tomorrow she will fight for the crown against the veteran Marjorie Leeming, of Victoria, who had a 6-2, 6-2 win over Helen Fulton, Chicago city champion, today.

Two sister teams will contest the women's doubles championship. Mrs. C. E. Gray and Olive Wade, Toronto, qualified for the final today by defeating another Toronto pair, Beatrice Symons and Jean Adele Burritt, 7-5, 6-3. Two other sisters, Marjorie Leeming, Victoria, and Mrs. K. J. Salmond, Toronto, won their way into the championship match with victory over the Winnipeg team of Mrs. J. F. Devlin and Mrs. Gordon Pitt, 6-2, 6-2.

The match between Parker, darling of the galleries, and Martin today provided a thrill no other match could give. Although Martin extended him for short periods, Parker won with comparative ease. In the first set he was not even pressed, and while Martin battled stubbornly in the second and third, there was no match for the young magician from Milwaukee.

LOTT SHOWS FORM

Lott seemed to drop the first set deliberately in his match with Rainville, after the Montrealer had picked up the first three games. Conserving his energy, the Chicagoan did not exert himself to save the set, while the Montrealer went all out to get it. Lott forced the pace in the second, however, driving deep across court to get Rainville out of court and taking the net to angle the Montrealer's return out of reach. The third and fourth set saw him keep up his hard-hitting attack and Rainville was given no win after the second.

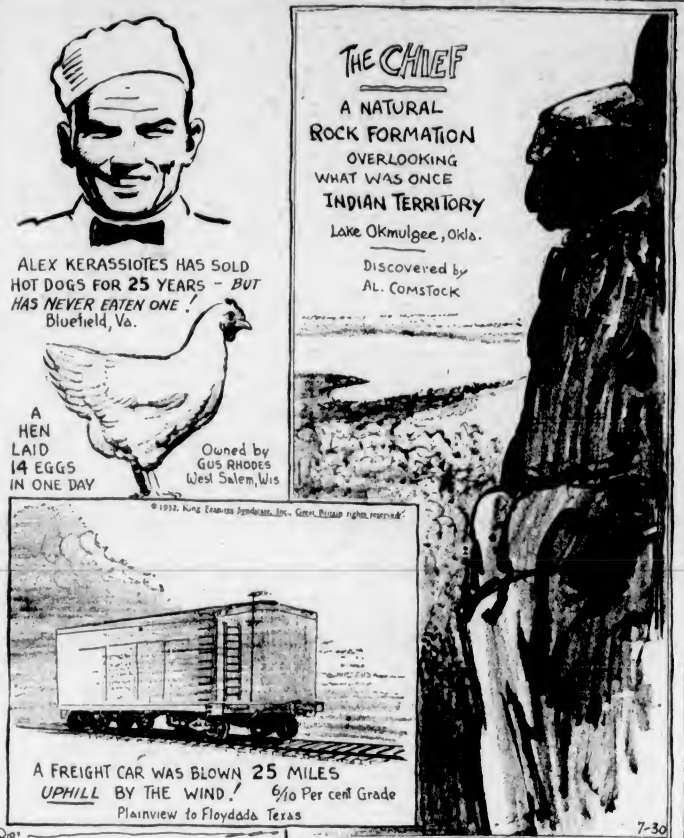

Montreal and Vancouver meet in the final of the junior men's singles. Bobby Murphy, of the metropolis, will fight it out with young Colin Milne, of the Pacific Coast, for the national title. Today Murray eliminated George Goodwin after a long battle by 8-6, 7-5, and Milne took G. Robinson, St. Catharines, into camp, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Claire Walsh, Toronto, who won her way into the semi-finals yesterday, will meet the brilliant young Chicago miss, Helen Fulton, in the final of the junior ladies' singles.

Two strong mixed doubles teams will clash in the final tomorrow when Olive Wade and Grant McLean, Toronto, meet Gladys Hutchings, Bermuda, and Keith Werner, Philadelphia. Playing in the twilight tonight, the former pair defeated Marjorie Leeming, Victoria, and Commander C. J. I. Edwards, 6-2, 6-2, while the Hutchings-Werner combination won from Marjorie Leeming, Victoria, and Mrs. K. J. Salmond, Toronto, 6-3, 6-3.

EXPLANATION FOR YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

The Duke of Alba—The present Duke of Alba, most blue-blooded member of the aristocracy of Spain, was born in 1878. In addition to all his titles of nobility he is an attorney-at-law, a former Senator by right of birth, and the owner of many baronies and extensive estates, as well as the holder of the most exclusive decorations by the Governments of Europe.

The Duke has inherited all his titles by right of being descended from fourteen grandees of Spain.

A Burrowed Castle in Spain—Twenty-five years ago Lino Bueno, whom the inhabitants of Alcolea del Pinar affectionately call "Dio" (Uncle), was a homeless drain digger. In order to provide himself with a home he started to belabor a huge rock towering over the highway back in 1897. Following his trade in the daytime and devoting his leisure to his homestead work he succeeded in converting the rock into a house for himself and family by dint of the most patient labor, lasting twenty-five years.

The house, hewn out of the solid rock with the aid of a pickaxe alone, contains seven large rooms, a kitchen, benches, shelves, portals, dormitories, windows, a balcony, and other furnishings, all hewn out of the rock.

To Lino's casa-roca has attracted the attention of the Government, and the old picturesque "campesino" has been awarded a life pension and a medal for his persistence.

A Death-Defying Stunt—Martin Baracatigui, famous in tauro-machy under his boyhood name of Martincho, acquired undying fame by incredible feats of temerity in the bull ring. A favorite stunt of his was to await the rushing bull while seated in a chair, and to dispatch it in the same position while his feet were shackled with leg irons that prevented his slightest movement.

The Spanish painter, Goya, immortalized one of those moments in his famous painting of Martincho in the ring.

Sons of Canada Oust Green Mill From Top Slot in Flag Chase

Canadians' 8-3 Victory Over Antlered Crew Puts Cafemen in Second Place—Parfitt Twirls Good Ball for Winners—Losers Erratic

HOW THEY STAND

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Sons of Canada	9	5	.643
Green Mill	7	4	.636
Elks	7	7	.500
Tillikum	3	10	.231

Next game, Monday—Tillikum vs. Green Mill.

Defeating the Elks, 8-3, at the Royal Athletic Park last night, Sons of Canada ball nine ousted the idle Green Mill aggregation from the leadership in the local flag chase. The Canadians played steady ball in the pinches, while the antlered crew nine lacked their pep of previous fixtures.

Manager Charli Fea sent the veteran Ray Parfitt, husky right-hander, to the hillcock against the Elks, and he worked in masterly fashion, allowing but seven scattered bingles and leaving only a free ticket to the initial onslaught. It marked Parfitt's second straight victory over the antlered crew, having shut them out in his previous performance.

SONS TAKE LEAD

Getting to Doc Webster, Elks' mound artist, for three bingles in the initial session, the Canadians scored twice before the inning was added another pair of markers, and duplicated this feat in the fourth and sixth innings for a total of eight runs.

The Elks managed to score one run in each of the first, third and sixth innings for three markers. Failure to come through with hits when they were badly needed, and a lot to do with keeping their score down to three runs, while the splendid support afforded Parfitt by his outfielders was another deciding factor.

Sons of Canada collected a total of eleven hits from the offerings of Webster, but batters in crucial stages gave them runs.

Tommy Bowden, Elks' catcher, took the count in the seventh inning, when Bill Holman, Sons' pitcher, crashed into him in trying to score from third. Bowden was as cold as a January frost for a few seconds, but was soon revived and back in the game with his old fighting spirit.

Falconer Campbell, Canadians' first sacker, led the sluggers with three hits out of four trips to the plate.

FRANCE TAKES LEAD IN DAVIS CUP NET FINAL

Borotra Sweeps to Thrilling Victory Over U.S. Champ

Veteran French Ace Hero of First Day's Play for Historic Cup by Downing Ellsworth Vines—Henri Cochet Takes Four-Set Struggle From Wilmer Allison—Doubles Billed Today

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

PARIS, July 29.—Jean Borotra, who thought he was too old to play tennis, tonight won the Davis Cup trophy for France by sweeping the United States champion, Ellsworth Vines, in a thrilling four-set match.

HENRI COCHET

The unexpected defeat of Vines just about dashed any hopes the Americans had of regaining the trophy France won at Germantown in 1927. They must win the next three matches, the doubles tomorrow and the singles Sunday, to win the cup, and that appeared to be an impossible task with Borotra playing about the best tennis of his career and Cochet still the master of old.

GALLERY STILL
The French gallery acclaimed the victory of Borotra almost hysterically, and well they might. Meeting an opponent thirteen years younger, with a devastating service and more powerful strokes, Borotra mixed all the strategy of his many years of tennis with a burning will to win and completely smothered the versatile Vines.

Vines faced the crisis of his short, spectacular career on foreign courts when, returning from a rest after the third set, he attempted to pull the match out of the fire but failed against the unconquerable spirit of Borotra, who fought for every point as though his life depended upon it.

Cochet was apparently worried at times by the slashing game of Allison, a last-minute selection for a singles assignment, but he always had the strokes to win points when they were needed.

Cochet will pair with another veteran of many Davis Cup battles, Jacques Brugnon, against Allison and John Van Ryn in the doubles tomorrow.

Vancouver Sprinter at Los Angeles

of Vancouver, who qualified second in the Canadian Olympic trials at Hamilton and will fly the colors of the Maple Leaf at the Olympic games in Los Angeles.

She has a past record of amazing performance over the 100-metre race and is expected to be well up with the leaders when the time comes.

SONS TO PLAY PORT ANGELES IN TWIN BILL
Strong Washington Ball Nine to Appear in Exhibition Series Here Today

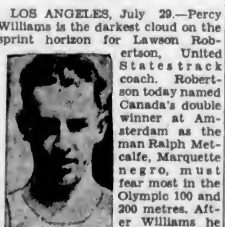

McGregor will handle both features.

Manager Charlie Fes, of the Canadians, announced yesterday that Lloyd Cann, youthful speedball artist, will go to the hillcock in the afternoon, with either Jack Noble or Roy Haines doing the heavy work in the night attraction.

Determined to gain revenge for their 6-5 defeat here at the hands of the Green Mill earlier in the season, Port Angeles is bringing over a strong club. Three hurriers, Stetson, Lamberton and Warner are making the trip, with Parr and Lynch as catchers, "Sonny" Murray, flashy first sacker, cover the initial cushion, with McLennan on the keystone cushion, Ecott and Vincent will play short and third base, respectively. The team will be Cox, McElrany, Gagnor and Bray.

PERCY WILLIAMS WILL BE FEARED

U.S. Track Coach Says Canadian Flash Will Be Main Metcalfe Must Beat

Percy Williams, son of Germany, kayashin, of Japan, as the chief opponents of the United States flyer.

Tom Hampson, the Briton, is the man to beat in the 800 metres, Robertson believes, holding that whoever turns the trick must make 1:50. Eddie Genung is the chief United States hope.

Robertson is convinced that either Ben Eastman or Bill Carr will win the 400 metres, regardless of Great Britain's Godfrey Rampling, but is reluctant to commit himself as to which of the two he believes will make the best showing.

The veteran Yankee coach says "Pen" Halliwell, of Harvard, now recovering from a bad cold, must be considered in the 1,500 metre race. He has been informed Reginald Thomas, of England, is off form. The two Finns, Harri Larva, defending champion, and Eino Purje, he regards as dangerous.

He thinks the United States athletes are "sure winners in the high jump, pole vault, 400 metres and probably 200 metres." The three most improved men on the United States squad appear to be Eddie Toian, the sprinter; Percy Beard, the South's high hurdler, and Leo Sexton, yesterday betted by more than a foot his winning time in the final shotput trials with a 54-foot 10 1/2-inch throw.
